

Harwich Port, Massachusetts

Boston Realty Advisors retained to sell Handler's Auto Parts Property

After 73 years of business, the Handler family has decided to sell the Handler's Auto Parts property in Harwich Port in the Lower Cape.

Boston Realty Advisors' Commercial Investment Sales brokers, David A. Lank and Jason S. Weissman, are representing the Mollie Handler Trust in selling the asset.

Founded by Louis and Mollie Handler, Handler's Auto Parts has been family owned and operated since 1937. Serving Cape Cod, the Islands and New England, Handler's is an auto repair, parts dealer and junk yard business. Currently, the business is owned and operated by Louis and Mollie's three children, Jan, Geraldine and Robert, alongside their respective spouses and children.

The business sits on 3.14 acres of commercially zoned land, which was officially listed by Boston Realty Advisors earlier this month. The business and land is for sale. No asking price has been established and the owners are accepting any and all offers in a rolling format, to be independently considered as they are presented. The family will continue to operate the business until the business and/or property is sold.

Boston Realty Advisors Commercial Investment Sales Team assists private and institutional real estate owners with the disposition of commercial real estate. The team, led by Founder and Principal, Jason S. Weissman, offers sophisticated deal underwriting, complete exposure marketing strategies and effective price maximization modeling. The Boston Realty Advisors platform is unique as it provides a full-spectrum of real estate consulting services. Leveraging several best-in-class divisions, the independently owned firm employs its seasoned experts in residential sales, commercial sales, office and retail leasing, apartment leasing, and accelerated auction marketing departments in order to offer their clients a fully comprehensive service.

The firm, Boston Realty Advisors, with offices in Boston's Back Bay and Manhattan's Downtown, is extremely unique for offering residential, office, retail and medical real estate brokerage, all under one roof. For more information, please visit www.bradvisors.com/commercial