Boston, Massachusetts

Bonny Doorakian of Boston Realty Advisors leases a new studio space to Yoga Power Studio in Boston's Downtown Submarket.

Yoga Power Studio has leased its second location in the heart of the Financial District at 133 Pearl Street.

Boston Realty Advisors' commercial broker, Bonny Doorakian, represented Yoga Power Studio and Paul Pita and Bonny Doorakian of Boston Realty Advisors' represented the owner, GFI Partners in the transaction.

Yoga Power classes take students through a specially designed and different creative flow in each class. Students are instructed to find their practice within every pose, taking it to their own most challenging level. Yoga Power has based its philosophy on the benefits obtained from the physical practice of yoga. While derived from ancient yoga practices, yoga power does not adhere to any particular religion, philosophy, or type of meditation. Aside from developing a sharp mental focus and strong relaxation, we find that our students determine spiritual benefits for themselves.

Yoga Power teachers are all highly experienced and trained in various styles of yoga to offer the best of both worlds. Each teacher is encouraged to bring their own styles and personalities to their classes to offer students variety and a well rounded practice.
